

PROVIDENCE

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCE

For nearly a century, Providence has been a Christian academic community in the evangelical tradition that teaches people to grow in knowledge and character for leadership and service. Providence infuses learning with Christian faith, to form and equip students for a wide variety of vocations to participate in God's creative and redemptive work in the world.

POSITION OVERVIEW

Providence University College invites applicants for a full-time, tenure-track position as Assistant Professor of Environmental Sciences. By the time of appointment, applicants must have earned a PhD degree in environmental science, geoscience, or a related field. In addition to their specialty in the environment, the ideal candidate should have knowledge of a variety of biological and/or chemical sciences.

The successful candidate will teach a combination of courses and labs each semester, mentor science majors, and contribute to the growing science program at Providence. This hire will spearhead the development of a four-year Bachelor of Science (Environmental Science major) to compliment the existing Health Science major. As is typical within Providence, this position is predominantly a teaching-focused faculty position. Research and/or public scholarship goals are additional assets.

EDUCATION & QUALIFICATIONS

The successful candidate will have:

- A doctorate in a biological, chemical, environmental, or geological science
- Teaching experience at the undergraduate level
- Knowledge of pedagogical best practices for in-person and online courses
- Lab experience and technical skills
- Leadership skills and an interest in programmatic development
- Evidence of mentorship potential
- Ability to work well with students, staff, and faculty in a collegial environment
- Desire to infuse their Christian faith into all aspects of their role

PERSONAL COMMITMENT

The successful candidate will:

- Commit to Christian higher education
- Support the Providence mission, vision, and values
- Affirm the Statement of Faith
- Agree to abide by the Covenant of Community Life
